the Wedding Trousseau.

THE MOTHER-IN-LAW WAS INDIGNANT

Yesterday the parties engaged in the Nesbit divorce case met at the office of Attorney Charles E. Cornelius, the Commissioner. Attorneys W. C. Stillwagen and D.

D. Brice appeared for the plaintiff and respondent respectively. Mrs. Nesbit's maiden name was Virginia Wooster, and her father, A.C. Wooster, lives outside Chartiers township in moderate circumstances.

Mrs. Nesbit has alleged cruelty against her husband in answer to his charge against

At the last hearing she denied that several of the wedding presents in her pos-session belonged to Mr. Nesbit, among others some books given by H. J. Gordon, which she alleged contained a card, with her name, in Mr. Gordon's writing: She also denied that her husband had ever given her money. Mr. Nesbit was recalled yesterday to reply to these statements. He was sworn, and handed a list of the wedding and other presents.

He said that no demand had been made on him for money on goods mentioned in the list. Mr. Shields, who did come to him, made no demand, but said that if he did not have $4,000 ready before a certain time, suit would be brought against nim for the effects. With regard to the giving of money, Mr. Nesbit said that when Miss Wooster promised to be his wife he knew she was in rather poor circumstances, and offered to purchase her trousseau.

rowds of onlookers standing in front of his display wondering why such respectable and well-known physicians and superin-tendants of hospitals recommend so highly this particular brand of rye whisky. To these we would say: Ask those who have used it. Get the truth from those who have been benefited by it. Do not mind petty sayings of would-be competitors. You will not find many of them who will speak well of an article that leads them all. It is use-

Georgetown not long since, and went down to the great dismay of her owners, is at present being treated by the skillful surgeons of the dock. One of these gentlemen was good enough to give a short account of his patient. He said:

"She is the worst case we have had for many a long day. You see she was broken from the sta board kauckle to the sta board wing kelcel, a length of 62 feet, and from the sta board knuckle to the main kelcel, a length of 22 feet."

The reckless newspaper-man who had the temerity to venture into the dock, scratched his head over this announcement, and vaguely remarked, "Yes, yes, I see." An account of how the patient was carried from the scene of the accident and got into the dock may prove interesting. The Enterprise was submerged to three feet above her it was practicable to unchain the remaining cal barge. The Little Dick's powers were again called into play, and by the help of her pushing the Enterprise was got into dock. The stands or blocks, upon which injured vessels rest, have to be altered to suit

WAGNER MUSIC TO-NIGHT.

Yesterday.

Five thousand two hundred excur-the Exposition mean at least 10,000 strangers in the city, and 10,000 strangers in the city mean a great deal. Yesterday was no doubt the greatest day, in an excursion light, the Exposition has yet seen, but it will be topped many times over before the great show at the Point is done. That "the last is best of all the game" seems to have taken root in the public mind, and as every day draws the great show nearer to a close, so every day runs the attendance higher and higher.

Speaking about music, there has been prepared for to-night, fashionable night, a programme for the Thirteenth Regiment Band that will make all the preceding seem as naught in comparison. King "Vogner" holds sway to-night, and it will be Wagner,
